"The stated purpose is to stimulate an awareness and understanding of women in the American society, through development and implementation of special courses and programs of study having this principle object."

Michigan House
Concurrent Resolution No. 257

University of Michigan-Dearborn is offering a new inter-disciplinary minor in Women's Studies in response to a growing interest on our campus.

To have a Women's Studies Minor recognized on your diploma complete at least 15 hours in courses above the 300 level in at least 3 of the following disciplines.

History 370 Women in America
365 Family in History
397 History of Women in China and Japan
497 Research Seminar in Feminism

Political Science 360

Women, Politics and the Law

Psychology/Sociology 443

Development of Sex Roles

English 430

Studies in 19th Century British Literature: Some Images of Women.

Be looking for the expanding course selection. The following are proposed courses to be taught in the future:

Anthropology	Women In A Cross Culture Perspective
Art History	Visual Concept of Role of Woman in Non-Western. Traditional Societies
English	20th Century British and American Women Poets
History	Social Role of the European Woman During the 19th and 20th Centuries
Music	Women in the Arts: Performers and Composer
Sociology	Life Span Choices of Women: Open or Closed? Psysiology, Psychology or Sociology?

For further information contact the Counseling Office or Dr. Helen Graves, Assistant Professor of Political Science.